THE LINDBERGH CHILD
SPIRIT SET FREE
THEY ALSO SERVE
WORK FOR 15,000

—By Arthur Brisbane—

TEN MINUTES before this was written, at 6:15 yesterday afternoon, the city editor brought word that reporters had been requested to come to Hopewell, Colonel Lindbergh's residence.

And at this moment comes an Associated Press bulletin with the announcement that the Lindbergh child has been found dead. No more dreadfully shocking news could be imagined, nothing that could produce so great a horror of the depths of criminality to which this nation has been reduced.

YET THE DREADFUL end of a horrible tragedy will be for the parents almost a relief from the uncertainty, the constant wondering and worrying about the child by day and in the dead of night. It means the end of an agony that has lasted week after week, for so long. It means, above all, that the little boy is forever beyond the reach of man's hideous brutality. His spirit is set free; nothing can ever harm him now. His parents must find what comfort they can in that thought and in the profound sympathy and affection of an entire nation.

THE information given out by the governor of New Jersey is meager, at this hour only that the child's body was found "near the estate." How long ago the death occurred is not stated. What happened can only be surmised—that the crime was that of an insane person; that it was an act of revenge, which is inconceivable, that the child died on the way where and brought back to prevent discussion. A thousand theories are discussed.

But one blessed fact is established. The child is safe at last. It is not in brutal hands, crying for its mother. And she knows that her baby is beyond the reach of harm or suffering, mercifully released from danger forever. She can think of the little soul at peace, the beautiful face as she used to see it. And the child will have a reach of her loving thoughts and prayers.

A HORSE called "Doc" died yesterday, owned by E. R. Quibb & Sons. You never heard of him, race tracks never saw him; he lived and died in his stable, supplying serum to prevent diphtheria, enough to protect 4,000 children. Perhaps he will live in the heaven for horses as good a place as that reserved for Alexander the Great's milkwhite Albion, or the chivalrous Rosinante.

"They also serve who only stand and wait."

THE GOVERNMENT having set aside money to provide employment, while helping judicious undertakings, ought to lend to the

COMMITTEEMEN NAMED BY G.O.P. AND DEMOCRATS

Complete Unofficial Returns Announced Today By Vote Board

CONTINUE WORK ON FINAL COUNT

Expect to Complete Official Tabulation Late Saturday

Election of 23 Republican and Democratic precinct committeemen by Salem city and Perry township voters in Tuesday's primaries was announced today by county board of election members who today are working on the official tabulation of ballots in the county courthouse at Lisbon.

Republicans named committeemen in each of the 13 municipal precincts and the one township precinct. Democrats nominated committeemen in nine of the 14 precincts.

Complete Unofficial count
John W. Moore, clerk of the election board, today announced the complete unofficial results of the primary vote as cast in the county's 110 precincts, reporting that 17,402 votes, 16,083 of them Republican and 1,319 Democratic, were registered in the polling for governor by the two parties.

The official tabulation, Moore said, will probably not be completed before Saturday afternoon, the check-up, by reason of the lengthy ballots, being one of the most difficult the board has faced for many years.

Republican precinct committeemen named by Salem's voters follow:
First ward—A. precinct, H. W. Pealy; B. C. C. Shaffer; C. J. L. Gray.
Second ward—A. Dr. Leroy Hartough; B. Ralph B. Snider; C. A. R. Courtney.

Third ward—A. Harry Robinson; B. Geo. F. Koonitz.
Fourth ward—A. A. P. Morris; B. J. T. Burns; C. Ross Culbertson; D. Richard L. Hutcheson; E. W. R. Pearce.

Township—Warren H. Brown. Democrats, board members reported, did not name committeemen in 1-A, 2-A, 2-B, 2-C and 4-D. Those in other precincts are:
First ward—1-B, Ernest Schmid; 1-C, Austin L. Geitz.
Third ward—A, O. J. Asty; B, C. A. Cavanaugh.

DUBLIN NEXT ON N. JERSEY PILOT'S TRIP

Hopes to Halve "Eagle's" Time In Three-Stop Journey

(By Associated Press)
HARBOR GRACE, N. F., May 13.—Lou Reichers hopped for Dublin, Ireland, at 8:30 a. m., New Foundland daylight time (6 a. m. in Salem) today after effecting repairs to his stabilizer, broken in landing on his hop from Newark, N. J., to Harbor Grace.

Three-Hop Flight
Harbor Grace was the Arlington, N. J., speed flier's first scheduled refueling stop on a three hop flight from Newark, N. J., to Paris. From Harbor Grace he proposed to fly to Dublin, Ireland, where he will pick up a second supply of fuel and continue to Paris.

It was at first believed that repairs to a stabilizer he had broken in landing would hold him here for several hours, but mechanics began work on the broken part immediately and repairs were completed within two hours. The plane was refueled in record time.

Reichers made the hop from Newark, N. J., to Harbor Grace in six hours and 22 minutes.

Seeks to Halve Time
The speed flier is attempting to halve the time of Colonel Lindbergh's non-stop flight from New York to Paris, in 1927. Reichers expected to make the flight in about 16 hours.

The weather was considered favorable as Reichers headed his plane eastward and began the most perilous part of his journey. The 550 gallons of fuel in the tanks of his machine was believed sufficient for 12 flying hours. The aviator hoped to make 200 miles an hour.

World Mourns, With Parents, Loss of Famous Baby

The Lindbergh Case in Brief

(By Associated Press)
Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., 20 months old, was kidnapped from the nursery of his parents' Soudland Hills home the night of March 1.

He was killed probably immediately afterward.

The body was buried hurriedly just off the Hopewell-Mount Rose road, within five miles of the Lindbergh estate.

Two truckmen, entering the wooded terrain, found the body, a virtual skeleton, at 3:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon, 72 days after the kidnapping.

Several hundred thousand dollars is estimated to have been spent in fruitless hunt for the infant.

Col. Lindbergh himself paid a $50,000 ransom.

Mrs. Edward E. McLean, of Washington, owner of the ill-fated Hope diamond, paid $100,000.

The mystery of the kidnapping and of the murder remains unsolved.

Degree Gathering Held By Masons

The Super Excellent Masters degree was exemplified by Omega council No. 44, R. & S. M., for the annual inspection Thursday evening at Masonic temple, conducted by Theodore Wengen of Coshocton, grand principal conductor of work.

Among the visitors were H. M. Rein of Youngstown, past grand master of Ohio, and Henry Gruen of East Liverpool, deputy high priest of the grand chapter of Ohio, and Burr Sanford of Youngstown, a grand chapter officer.

Approximately 90 attended the inspection, including 20 visitors who were from Coshocton, Alliance, Youngstown, East Palestine and East Liverpool.

Dinner was served preceding the work by members of the Eastern Star.

Improve Highway Near Hanoverton

HANOVERTON, May 13.—The paved section of the Lincoln highway between here and Kensington is being taken up by Victor Oleson of Youngstown recently awarded the contract by the state highway department for the reconstruction of this 15 mile stretch. The old brick will be used as a base for the new. This road is to be widened to a width of 20 feet and given a concrete top.

A dirt road from here southward and connecting with the Summitville-Kensington rd is to be used as a detour. When the Lincoln highway project is finished the "S" curve here will be eliminated.

STRESSES NEED OF PRESERVING HUMAN VALUES

Alliance School Leader Lauds Nurses in Hospital Program

"If we are to have a better world we must have better people. If there ever was a time when the world needed to know the laws of health it is now."

"Think of the world as not just a place to make a living but a place to make a life."

Thus spoke Prof. B. F. Stanton of Alliance, formerly of Salem, to a large group of people Thursday evening at the Salem High school auditorium during the program presented by Salem City hospital as a part of its observance of National Hospital day here.

Stanton used for his theme, "Human Values", and in his talk emphasized their conservation.

Hope Lies in Education

The speaker expressed the opinion that this hope for a "better world" lies in the education of the coming generation. He opposes economy measures which would mean the retrenchment in the health and educational program of the state.

"Money for health work is well invested," the speaker declared. "Anything," he said, "that is worthwhile, costs."

Open Air Meeting Planned Saturday

An open air meeting of Salem residents interested in the Socialist Labor party of America will be held at the corner of North Lundy ave., and East Second st., at 8 p. m. Saturday. It was announced here today by Mark Vukich of Salem.

R. H. Richardson of Akron will be a speaker at the meeting. He will discuss "Intellectual Bankruptcy and Lesson to Labor."

Sidelights On Crime That Has Shocked Nation

Will Not See Body
TRENTON, N. J., May 13.—The broken little body of "the eagle" will be laid away without his parents having seen it.

Anne and Charles Lindbergh will always remember their lost son as the handsome little chap, with yellow curls and blue eyes, and a radiant smile.

Frank W. Swayze, the undertaker in charge of the body, said today he had been informed that neither Colonel nor Mrs. Lindbergh would see it.

It will be placed in a sealed coffin before it is delivered to them, he said. He did not know when the burial would take place, or what the funeral arrangements were.

Of those whom he learned to know and trust in the few months that were his span of life, only his nurse, Betty Gow, saw the body of little Charles Lindbergh.

He used to call her "Gow."

Tragedy Strikes Twice

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 13.—Double tragedy has come to Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh in the last eight months.

Last Oct. 5, while she and Col. Lindbergh were on an aerial trip to the Orient her father, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, died.

Despite the second blow—the finding of the body of her kidnapped son—Mrs. Lindbergh was described as bearing up with her "usual equanimity."

The courage of the young mother, who is expecting another child within a few months, has been an inspiration to all about her, friends said.

Marks of Identification

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 13.—Two baby shirts, clinging to the tiny form found in Mt. Rose thicket were the first means of identifying the child as Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Other marks of identification were:

Overlapping toes on the right foot; strands of hair, which, when washed, were found to be blond and curly; eight molar teeth; the skull formation.

"Jasie" Is Released
TRENTON, N. J., May 13.—District Attorney Edwin Marshall announced this afternoon that nothing had been found to implicate Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jasie" of the search for the Lindbergh baby.

"He has been released and has gone back to New York," Marshall said.

President Demands That Criminals Be Brought to Justice

Hoover Directs Law Enforcement Agencies, Secret Service In Unrelenting Hunt For Slayers of Child

TOT'S BODY IS FOUND IN WOODS ON EDGE OF LINDBERGH'S ESTATE

Definite Identification Is Made, Authorities Announce; "Intermediaries" Called In For Questioning

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 13.—President Hoover today directed the law enforcement agencies and secret service of the federal government to set out upon a hunt for the murderers of the Lindbergh baby, "never to be relaxed until those criminals are implacably brought to justice."

The President, employing strong language, directed the federal police authorities "to make the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never to be forgotten case."

The federal government does not have direct police authority in the present case, he pointed out, despite its brutality and the nation wide horror it has caused, but federal agencies will be "unceasingly alert" to bring the murderers to punishment.

The President issued the following statement:

"I have directed the law enforcement agencies and the several secret services of the federal government to make the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never to be forgotten case, never to be relaxed until these criminals are implacably brought to justice."

(By Associated Press)
HOPEWELL, N. J., May 13.—The Lindbergh baby is dead; murdered, brutally.

They found the body—it was hardly more than a skeleton—late yesterday afternoon. A Negro truckman, pushing his way through thick brush of the Soudlands—not five miles from the Charles A. Lindbergh estate—made the discovery.

Police were called. Identification was confirmed. A baby hunt, cautious and painstaking, was ended; a man hunt, wideflung and intense, swept forward in its place.

"Intermediaries" Called
Two "intermediaries" of the baby search, men who for weeks had been moving in and out of the background, their movements carefully guarded for fear of endangering the child's life, were called to give an accounting of their hidden activities.

One of these men was Dr. John P. Condon, the 72-year-old educator of New York City, who, negotiating through the newspapers as "Jasie", established contact with a man to whom, later, $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money was paid on promise—never fulfilled—that the child would be returned "alive and well."

The other was John H. Curtis, one of three Norfolk, Va., "intermediaries", whose recent information has sent him into the coastal waters near Long Island, where, it was hinted, contact was to be made with the kidnappers.

DISCOVERY MADE BY TRUCKMAN

"These men are being questioned now, and will be questioned later in the day by the prosecutor," said Col. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police. "They are not, however, under arrest."

Discovery of the child's skeleton was made by William Allen, Negro truckman. His truck, driving the Hopewell-Mount Rose highway, had halted, and Allen had left it to enter the woods.

Brush and undergrowth blocked his path. He stopped and pushed it aside.

Beneath the brush, underneath a layer of rotting leaves lay the body of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., only child of Anne, daughter of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, and Charles Lindbergh.

Clinging to the decomposed body was weather-worn flannel that had kept the baby warm that night of March 1, when his nurse tucked him into his crib. These shreds of baby clothing were identification enough; these, and the matted, curly, blonde hair.

Today, a horror-kindred incident drove forces of the law to unrestrained hunt for the murderer. The leases of secrecy and of fear for the baby's safety no longer held. It was no longer necessary to exercise extreme care. Murder had been done.

A compound fracture of the skull caused death. The murder evidently was done very soon after the kidnapping, probably within an hour. A man, mad, apparently, motivated either by an intense hatred or an overpowering fear, struck the child dead. Physicians described it as a "terrific blow."

NO WEAPON FOUND NEAR SCENE

No weapon has been found. There was added possibility the baby had been hurled violently from a motor car.

State police of New Jersey, who had been in direct charge of the search for the baby since the night, 73 days ago, when the voice of Col. Lindbergh over a telephone, said "my baby has been kidnapped," made the identification of the body. A physician added confirmation. Later Miss Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, said she was "quite certain" the body was that of the Lindbergh child.

Parents In Background
The parents themselves remained completely in the background while their greatest tragedy was being written.

Mrs. Lindbergh and her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, were at the Hopewell estate. Col. Lindbergh was absent, engaged in the baby hunt with Curtis, the Norfolk "intermediary." He returned early this morning.

Close friends said Mrs. Lindbergh, who is preparing for another baby in the late summer, had accepted the news with her "usual equanimity."

One of the strange, weird jests of the horror that for 73 days had turned the Soudland estate of the Lindberghs into a tragic heart-break house was the discovery of the body, virtually at its doorstep.

Efforts to get the "intermediaries" to comment were without result. There were a number of them, some endorsed by Col. Lindbergh and others acting upon their own initiative. The most active were Dr. Condon of New York and Curtis. Others were Morris Ros-

TARIFF: NO ISSUE

From the ordinary observer's standpoint the tariff situation as it exists now is "another one of those things"—inexplicable, highly interesting, and more than a little amusing. President Hoover has vetoed a Democratic tariff bill taking away from him his tariff-changing power under the flexible provision. The veto has been sustained, without much to spare.

Theoretically, therefore, tariff is now a presidential campaign issue. But it could be an honest-to-goodness issue only if there were disagreement somewhere. Unfortunately, there is agreement on the only point that deals directly with the danger of tariffs. The President believes there should be an international economic conference to settle tariff problems; so do the Democrats. The President does not believe that tariffs rates can be made in such conferences; neither do honest Democrats.

It may be questioned, in fact, whether tariff can be made a popular issue or not. The fact is that Democrats have sold themselves up the river on the matter by betraying their party principles. They can talk about it, write about it, and even vote about it, but when it comes down to brass tacks they believe in a tariff for protection. Tariff is a practical problem; Democrats have approached it in a practical manner. For that reason they can make nothing out of it as a campaign issue. There isn't enough difference between them and their Republican brothers.

What Others Say

BILLIONS IN THE RED
Recent disclosures concerning the state or municipal finances in some centers of population lead one to wonder if city voters are really blind, deaf, dumb, and paralyzed.

New York City owes today the astounding sum of 2½ billion dollars. That is more than $350 for every man, woman and child in the city.

Before the war the net debt of the United States was just a trifle over one billion.

Latest figures, tabulated in 1929, place the entire indebtedness of all the 48 states of the Union at 35 per cent less than New York City's total.

And yet there are supposedly intelligent citizens who will say that graft is a necessary adjunct of efficient municipal administration.

In Illinois, "Big Bill" Thompson, during whose reign as mayor Chicago reached financial straits comparable to those of New York, has renounced politics and has won for his protégé, Len Small, the Republican nomination for the governorship.

Perhaps we have been too harsh, after all. New York's voters may have been blind, deaf, and dumb, but they are not paralyzed. When good old Jimmy Walker, their Tammany-raised chieftain, appears on his mortgaged streets, they can still applaud and strew figurative posies in his path. The paralysis may come a bit later. —Des Moines Tribune.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, May 14

A particularly lively day with the energies and faculties under high stimulus is the augury made from the lunar and mutual aspects in direction. It is a time for high initiative in business, new and brave projects, as well as in all of a literary or educational nature. It is a propitious time for dealing with mergers, combines or secret societies, although it would be well to be on the alert for trickery, conspiracy or scandal. The mind will be under keen pressure.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of strenuous and high pressure activities, with all the forces and faculties keyed up for energetic accomplishment. It is a favorable time for dealing with secret bodies or with combines, although it would be well to be alert to misrepresentation, fraud or graft. Personal affairs will thrive and be pleasant and profitable. A child born on this day may be energetic, aggressive, resourceful, but at the same time gentle, friendly and considerate in its social affairs. It should make good success of its life.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Thoughts while strolling. Those muffled little squares. Where women knit. And old men dream. Somehow I don't miss Andrew Mellon a little bit. No wonder they called them Blue Chip stocks. "Blue" is the word. Ballard McDonald back from a globe trot.

Sylvia, the marseuse, is a thin edition of Vicki Baum. They are calling a certain noisy child's "The Racket Club." No one ever sees George Gershwin's brother, Ira. James Montague and Bide Dudley bear a resemblance. Francis H. Sisson, a Galesburg, Ill. boy who made good in the city.

Who remembers when it required a "pull" to have a telephone installed in a hurry? George M. Cohan and Charles King have identical stage mannerisms. "Count" Davis and his white police dog. Does Howard Acton call that a mustache? One of my favorite people—Correy Ford. Swell name for a cat "Washington Mews."

Those hawkers of dirty five-cent books—"Put it in your pocket quick before the cops see us." And around the corner you find it a railroad time table. The acid humor of those jewelry auctioneers. The racial loop of Albert Mander's four-in-hand—dude of the haberdashers. Puff ties are in again, too. If the fur stores can carry on, the rest of us shouldn't squawk. Billy Moore on crutches. There should have been a step there. Kate Cross and her Sealham. Tommy Lyman's complexion suggests a wakened gardenia. Gerald Bredigan. One word description of Fifi D'Orsay—wrigly.

Whatever became of queensware stores? Central Park's evening obligato of insects. And the overtone of sparrows. Frank Case and Jesse Lasky, constant companions. A prophet mounts a Columbus Circle soap box. First stragglers of the bread line. The good looking Mary Roberts Rinehart.

Overheard: "I flattened a pansy." Moe Ducre in his drug store doorway. Two taxi drivers leap from their seats in an indignant twirling flurry. A cop's shrill whistle and life flows on. Many wonder why? Nobody appears more aloof than Lee Shubert.

Charlie Hughes, gazetteer from Detroit, dropped in to call on one of the witty gossipians of the magazine. It was 6 p. m. and the magazine answered the bell in pajamas. "We had a heavy storm last night," he explained, "and (cursing against a chair) the ship is still rolling."

The oddest of all beauty salons effloresces in a gray spire in the Sixties. A van dyked elegant in white surgeon coat is in charge. Here aristocratic blondes receive tonorial touches. Shampoos are from $4 to $15. Teeth are cleaned for $2. Because of the fear of water, rheumatic canines are dry cleaned for $10, a process requiring the entire day. Unframed attendants are on telephone call to air dogs for $2 an hour. Such grandeur is likely to foment a fury toward the innocent cadines. But it is not their fault. They are not responsible for nit-wit overloads.

Dogs have an acute sensitivity to such high blown fanciness. An always doleful Scottie on Long Island, bathed by his mistress, was sprayed with perfume. He turned and bit her savagely and rushed out of the house, never to return. He couldn't take it.

Sun Rays Make Many Cures

Not so many years ago the curative power of the sun's rays on certain cases of tuberculosis was accidentally discovered, and this led to exhaustive study and research regarding the action of these rays on the human body.

We all know what happens when a portion of the body is exposed to the rays of the sun. The skin will at first turn red, and if the exposure is continued, sunburn will result.

Ordinary sunburn by the sun's rays may not be dangerous, but in the therapeutic application of the sun ray, with one of the sun ray lamps, great care should be exercised. General exposure of the body to the sun ray should be avoided, as dangerous effects may follow, which would prevent the application of subsequent treatments.

If a portion of the body—at first one leg and foot, perhaps—is exposed to the direct rays for from ten to fifteen minutes daily, a pigmentation commonly known as tan will appear. If on the following days other small areas of the body are exposed, gradually the skin will take on a brown tint. Usually a marked improvement of the general health follows such treatment.

Sunlight not only acts upon the skin, but stimulates the blood vessels, and thus sends the blood in a more forceful stream through the body. The blood becomes richer and the red blood cells increase in number. The ability to resist infection is increased, and the immunizing properties of the system are strengthened. Weak muscles become stronger under the sun's rays, and the internal organs perform their work with greater ease.

The application of sun rays, either by direct rays of the sun or by one of the sun ray lamps, has been found very beneficial to children whose living conditions deprive them of the advantages of getting out into the sunshine. After treatment these children have shown improvement both in physical appearance and in disposition.

The beneficial elements of natural sun rays cannot penetrate ordinary window glass. A special type of glass must be used if the treatment by actual sunlight is to be given indoors.

Tuberculosis and rickets are the two diseases in which sun rays have made almost miraculous cures. Rickets is a deficiency disease, brought on not only by improper food, but also by living in dark and unsanitary homes. During the winter months, or seasons when the weather is cold and damp, many cases of rickets develop.

Anemia, which is common both in tuberculosis and rickets, improves markedly under the sun-treatment. The bones become stronger, and their content of mineral matter increases.

By all means get out into the sunshine all you can, and take sun baths in a conservative way. It is inadvisable, however, to overdo the sun treatment. Great primary exposure of the body at one time, or too long periods of treatment, may prove debilitating and even dangerous to the enthusiast.

STRESSES NEED OF HEALTH LAWS

Alliance School Leader
Lauds Nurses in Hospital Program

drous loss of life by automobile and industrial accidents were discussed by Prof. Stanton and he declared "we need to watch our step." He also spoke of the large death toll of children, from various diseases, and of steps to control diseases, which has been brought about by health measures, until the span of the average of life has been brought up to 58 years.

In his plea for the abolition of war the speaker told of its vast waste of men, money and property. He pointed out that out of the World war had come a great loss in faith and that this loss of faith is apparent in our governmental and economic order.

Prof. Stanton brought out the thought that from a conquest of nature we have been brought to a conquest of human nature for a better and more equitable distribution of things.

Tribute to Nurses

A high tribute was paid by Prof. Stanton to the nursing profession. Atty. L. P. Metzger presided and presented the speaker.

A beautiful pageant, "History of Nursing," was given by student nurses of Salem City hospital, under the direction of Miss Lillian Schroeder, instructor. An outstanding character in this was Florence Nightingale, whose birthday anniversary is celebrated by National Hospital day. Other women who have graced this profession in its beginning were represented.

Mrs. Stanton Heck was reader for the pageant. Miss Betty Lee Kenne- weg gave a "nature" dance and a vocal solo, "Red Cross Nurse," was sung by Mrs. A. B. Hobson, with Mrs. Paul Covert at the piano.

Music Is Feature

Mrs. Hobson, Mrs. Forest Coy, Mrs. Charles Cornwall and Mrs. C. M. Leasure, who appeared in colonial costumes, sang two selections, accompanied by Mrs. Covert. An Italian Street song, sung by Mrs. Richard Fitzpatrick of Columbiana, accompanied by Mrs. Elmer Coyle of Columbiana, was well received.

Two selections were played by a brass quartet composed of Clair King, Marion McArthur, William Holloway and Dale Leipper.

Rev. R. D. Walter, pastor of the Presbyterian church, offered two closes with Miss Anna Cook, playing the accompaniment.

HOOVER PUSHES RELIEF PLANS

Congress Leaders Seek Non Partisan Support For Big Program

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 13.—In vigorous effort, congressional leaders today sought to win from both Republicans and Democrats solid, non-partisan support for a $1,500,000,000 federal relief program. The huge outlay would be distributed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the funds being raised as needed through sale of corporation debentures, with no issue of government bonds. The money would be used both for relief and to provide employment through new construction.

Tentatively Approved
This compromise plan, framed in a meeting between President Hoover and Senator Robinson, was discussed in party conferences until late last night but received only tentative approval.

Even with the backing of President Hoover the proposal must have great support in both parties if it is to be passed within the brief four weeks remaining before congress quits work.

Administration Republicans on the senate banking committee, who would handle the necessary legislation, met with the president in a meeting described as "harmonious" and which apparently yielded general approval.

After the parley, Mr. Hoover gave out a statement outlining the compromise plan. By legislation, the present borrowing power of the reconstruction unit would be doubled, to a total of $3,000,000,000.

Retains Former Policy

The president made it plain he was in no wise abandoning the policy that relief of distress rests primarily on local effort, but said "since fear has arisen that existing relief measures and resources may prove inadequate" it was deemed wise to empower the Reconstruction Corporation to make relief loans to states if necessary. He advised limiting these loans to between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.

The remaining monies would be loaned for both private and public construction projects, provided they be "economically sound and self-supporting projects of a constructive replacement character."

NOW SCIENCE TELLS WHY BRAN IS SO GOOD FOR HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL BRAN Has "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Healthful Iron

By using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, millions of people have overcome common constipation, and the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

New laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN supplies two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

Further experiments prove ALL-BRAN provides twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Eat this delicious cereal and avoid pills and drugs. They cause artificial action, and often lead to harmful habits.

Try two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN has a delicious, nut-sweet flavor. Enjoy as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in making fluffy bran muffins, breads, omelets, etc. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

Labor-Saving Food Cutters
If there is much mincing of food to be done in the kitchen, it may pay to invest in an assortment of mechanical knives, for they turn out more perfect results in quicker time and save both labor and fingers.

For mincing a cupful or more of any food the quickest method is the mechanical meat-chopper, with a wooden handle and a set of round cutters of various sizes to chop coarsely or finely.

A very small quantity of raw food, like carrots or other vegetables, can be handled best in the small, old-fashioned chopping bowl for it takes less time than to set up and later clean the handled meat-chopper.

A sturdy grater is another help. By using the coarse sides, many raw foods can be diced or minced neatly with little labor. Some of the newer mincing devices have a board that lies flat on the table with a wide knife that slides up and down and slices or minces food as thinly or coarsely as desired.

The tubular knife costs only a few cents and will peel vegetables and some fruits more neatly and with less staining of fingers than the ordinary kitchen knife.

When cooked vegetables are to be mashed, they will be smoother and more attractive if they are run through a ricer instead of pounded with a fork or beetle. If they are forced through the ricer directly into the hot serving bowl, then garnished with a bit of parsley, they will be more pleasing in appearance than if mashed to a smooth pulp.

Washing Robes for Storing

Back into the moth-proof chests go the winter bathrobes at the first signs of spring; and of course a thorough cleansing beforehand is important, for immaculate, scrupulously cleanliness is the best kind of moth-proofing.

It will make washing an easier task if the bathrobes are first given a thorough brushing. Turn cuffs and pockets inside out, shake vigorously, then brush out all the loose dust.

Also it's a good plan to measure the shoulders, sleeves and length of a bathrobe while it's still dry, so that it can be stretched when wet to the same proportions. Clothes hangers thickly padded with tur-

(By Associated Press)
FRANKLIN, O., May 13.—Seeking to learn the cause of an explosion which yesterday killed six men, injured eight others and destroyed the plant of the Cheney Pulp and Paper company, an inquest was opened here today.

The cause of the explosion, which reduced a two-story brick building to ruins and shook houses for blocks around, was generally attributed to too much steam pressure in a rotary rag cooker.

In the cooker, a boiler affair, rags were cooked for manufacture into pulp.

Four Killed Outright

Four men were killed outright. They were: Sam Thompson, 47, and his son Richard, 24; James Young, 55, and Finley Couch, 30.

Sam Hawthorne, 40, died enroute to a hospital, and Preston Young 20, succumbed late last night. The critically injured are: George Carpenter, 42; Glenn Cook, 19, and Frank Gray. The less seriously injured include: John Homan, Charles Bowles, Bryan Henderson, Bruce Gillespie and David Patrick. Howard Cheney, owner of the plant, estimated his loss at $125,000.

Entire Structure Lifted
Bowles, who was on the second floor, said the blast was preceded by a rumbling sound. Then, he said, the entire structure seemed to be lifted into the air. It came down in a mass of crumbled concrete and brick, burying the victims. Firemen and volunteer workers were quick to the rescue, dragging the injured from the wreckage and rushing them to hospitals in Middletown and Hamilton. Most of the dead had families. James Young was the father of ten.

STOCKS STILL ON DOWNGRADE

Selling Continues In Light Volume In Early Trading

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, May 13.—The stock market continued on the downgrade in the early trading today, although selling was still in light volume.

Union Pacific and Coca Cola led about 2 points during the first half hour, issues off a point or so included American Telephone, American Can, Santa Fe, Eastman and Allied Chemical. Fractional declines appeared in U. S. Steel, Standard of N. J., Woolworth, North American and others. The selling movement appeared to be principally a continuation of yesterday's decline, since fresh news development of a character to influence the market were negligible.

MAY BE ARREST ANY TIME, SAYS N. J. LAW CHIEF

No One Under Suspicion Now; Condon, Curtis Questioned

(By Associated Press)
TRENTON, N. J., May 23.—District Attorney Erwin E. Marshall said after a conference at the state house today that no one was under suspicion for the slaying of the Lindbergh baby "at this time," but that there might be an arrest "any time."

"But there may not be any arrests for a few days," he added. "We are not going off half cocked on this thing. We are going to study this case and know where we are going."

Advances No Theories
Marshall, who is prosecutor of Mercer county and so has jurisdiction now because the body was found in that county, although the kidnapping occurred in Hunterdon county, said he was unprepared to advance any theories yet.

He said Dr. John F. Condon, who paid the $50,000 ransom, and John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk negotiator for the baby's return, had come voluntarily to the Lindbergh home after the body was found.

Not Order Arrest
They made formal statements last night were subjected to lengthy questioning today. Marshall said they were not under arrest but would be examined minutely as to every detail of their efforts in the case.

ESTIMATE POOR RELIEF FUNDS

Tax Commissioners Compute $114,313 for Columbiana County

LISBON, May 13.—The state tax commission has informed the county commissioners that Columbiana county is in a position to issue $114,313.33 poor relief bonds under authority of Section 3, Amended Senate Bill No. 4, recently enacted at a special session of the state legislature. It has been determined by the commissioners, however, that this amount will not be authorized at one time.

The estimate includes the total amount of bonds and interest. The bond issue must be decreased the amount of interest for the five year period, as annual installments of principal and interest are to be substantially equal. Based on this estimate, the interest will be approximately 18.6 percent, or the total payment 118.6 percent.

It has been suggested by the tax commission that the ratio in determining annual installments of principal for the first year shall be 18 per cent; second year 19 per cent; third year 20 per cent; fourth year 21 per cent and 22 per cent for the fifth year.

Under the provisions of the law authoring poor relief bonds, public utilities are to be taxed for the redemption of any issue, and no additional tax is to be added to property owners. There are 31 public utility interests doing business in Columbiana county that will participate in the redemption of this bond issue, if and when issued. It has been indicated, however, the commissioners will not authorize a bond issue up to the limit.

Persons, Scenes And Events In Kidnaping Of Lindberghs' Babe

ALONG ROAD LIKE THIS BABY WENT TO DEATH

View of one of the country lanes, Mount Rose road where the body from the Lindbergh house, below, near the Lindbergh home at Hopewell, N. J., was found. The exact spot was 12 miles showing the heavily wooded country similar to the north of Trenton, a short distance surrounding.

Baby Lindbergh As a Movie Actor

Following the kidnaping of his son, Col. Lindbergh released some motion picture film, made of the "world's most famous baby" last Fall, in the hope that exhibition of it might aid in the recovery of the stolen child. Above are three pictures from the film which show the strong resemblance of Baby Lindy to his famous father. (From Pathe News)

Aided Lindy

Upper photo is Dr. John F. Condon, lecturer at Fordham University, New York, whose negotiations through newspaper advertising led to the meeting between Colonel Lindbergh and persons purporting to be the kidnapers of his child. The Colonel paid $50,000 ransom on promise that the baby would be returned, but the kidnapers failed to keep their bargain. Lower photo is Al Reich, ex-prizefighter, who is said to have been a member of the Lindbergh party at the conference when the money was paid.

How Lindy's Baby Was Stolen

New Jersey detectives are shown as they re-acted the kidnaping of the baby son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh from their home at Hopewell, N. J. A ladder was used by the kidnapers to gain access to the second story nursery where the 19-months-old baby lay in his crib.

Lindberghs' Plea to Abductors

Mrs. Lindbergh and I desire to make a personal contact with the kidnapers of our child.

Our only interest is in his immediate and safe return and we feel certain that the kidnapers will realize that this interest is strong enough to justify them in having complete confidence and trust in any promises that we may make in connection with his return.

We urge those who have the child to select any representative that they desire to meet a representative of ours who will be suitable to them at any time and at any place that they may designate.

If this is accepted, we promise that we will keep whatever arrangements that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential, and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to injure in any way those connected with the return of the child.

Charles A. Lindbergh
Anne Lindbergh

This letter of appeal to the abductors of their baby son was issued by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh sixty hours after Baby Lindy was stolen from his home. The letter assures the kidnapers of secrecy in negotiating for the child's return.

Baby Lindy's Nurse

First to discover the disappearance of Charles Lindbergh, Jr., was his nurse, Miss Betty Gow, (above). The girl has been employed as the baby's nurse for a year.

Baby Lindy's First Birthday Cake

This excellent and appealing picture of little Charles Lindbergh, Jr., was made on his first birthday last June. The "world's most famous baby" was photographed in the garden of the Morrow estate at Englewood, N. J., as he reached for his birthday cake decorated with a single candle.

Lindbergh Dead Threat

This reproduction is of a postcard mailed at Princeton, N. J., to Col. Lindbergh. The message informs Lindbergh his kidnaped son "will die." The words "is dead" had been written on the card, but erased.

Seeks Clue Abroad

After he had gone to London to confer with Scotland Yard officials regarding the Lindbergh kidnaping, Major Charles Schofield, assistant to the chief of the New Jersey State police, is shown as he left his London hotel. Schofield's operations in England were shrouded in mystery, no details being given out to the press.

Recent Studies of Baby Lindy

These eight excellent pictures were taken from a movie film of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., made a few months ago. The film was released by Colonel Lindbergh in the hope its exhibition throughout the country might lead to the recovery of the kidnaped baby.

Keep Lindy's Wires Open

In order that there would be no obstacle to their receiving news of their missing baby, phone communications to the house of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were carefully examined regularly. Last are the sorrowing parents and the stolen baby.

When Kidnaped

This composite photograph shows how the kidnaped Lindbergh baby was dressed when abducted from his crib.

Babe's Search Turns To Hunt for Killer

ner-mystery man with connections dipping into the underworld—Elmer Spitalo and Irving Bittz—also presumed to have the confidence of gang members—and Gaston B. Means, acting as the agent of Mrs. Edward B. McLean. Private detectives and newspapers also were active in separate searches.

Move In Secrecy

All these "intermediaries" have moved like secret shadows through weeks of investigation. They maintained that any other course would endanger the life of the child. It was this secrecy that made possible the $50,000 "Jafsie" to which the sum was paid to a man near a Yonkers, N. Y., cemetery on the man's promise to return the child.

The Norfolk intermediaries—Curtis and two associates—were even more active than "Jafsie," employing airplanes, yachts and fast motor cars in negotiations that ran up and down the Atlantic seaboard and out to sea. Col. Lindbergh himself participated in these negotiations as recently as yesterday, it was learned.

Authorities understood that at the moment the body was discovered, the aviator was seeking to contact the kidnappers somewhere off Long Island.

Mrs. McLean, the Washington woman, who, acting independently, put up $100,000 in an effort to return the child to his parents, and who now charges Gaston B. Means, her agent, appropriated the money to his own use, declined to be quoted.

Efforts at definite identification were pursued even after the police nurse and the county physician had satisfied themselves that the skeleton was that of the Lindbergh baby. A physician who was present at the baby's birth was called in early today and added substantiation.

Withhold Ransom Note

The mysterious ransom note, reportedly demanding $50,000 for the baby's safe return, was withheld from publication. Col. Schwarzkopf, commanding the police, said it still was regarded as an important clue.

The announcement that Dr. Condon ("Jafsie") and Curtis, had been summoned to police headquarters at Trenton and that they were to be turned over to "prosecuting authorities," was the first definite indication that police finally were ready to throw aside their "hands off" policy concerning private negotiations and demand from the intermediaries a full account of their actions.

Authorities were still exercising extraordinary precautions to safeguard the feeling of the parents. Questions seeking to determine how the news had affected Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh and what plans they may have made toward bringing the baby to justice were not answered.

The report of the autopsy, performed by Dr. Mitchell, county physician, was gruesome in detail, in addition to the lower left leg, other parts of the body were missing.

ing, due presumably to decomposition, hastened by exposure. The left hand and right forearm were gone, as were some abdominal organs. The conclusion reached by the physician, however, was without equivocation. He said:

Diagnosis of the cause of death is a fractured skull due to external violence.

Expressions of sympathy came from every corner of the world, from Paris, to which Lindbergh then the "Lone Eagle," flew from New York in a single, uninterrupted flight; from Washington where his feat later was given the official acclaim of the American people and from Japan and China to which, with his wife as navigator and radio operator, he flew on a vacation tour last year.

A dramatic coincidence was noted in the fact that in the hour when the world was hearing news of the baby's death, Lou Reichers, New Jersey airman, was lifting the nose of his airplane into the night skies for a two-stop flight to Paris, in an endeavor to cut in half the time made by Col. Lindbergh.

TODAY

Pennsylvania railroad the $55,000-000 needed to complete the electrification of its lines between New York and Washington.

Millions have already been spent on the work, which may be stopped through no fault of the Pennsylvania railroad. Its management could not imagine what a depression was coming. The loan that the Pennsylvania requests would be useful to the whole country, employ 15,000 men more than two years, create orders for 68,000 tons of steel, many million pounds of copper.

It would involve more than 100 electric passenger locomotives and much other equipment. Since the government has the money to lend and the Pennsylvania can give perfectly good security, why not make the loan and let the 15,000 men work? If that is not practical, what is?

YOU READ yesterday that archaeologists from Rome have discovered what was left of Sodom and Gomorrah after the big fire.

More interesting is today's announcement that Professor Roy Waterman of the University of Michigan has discovered in Mesopotamia what he thinks is the Zikurkat, better known to us as the Tower of Babel.

Located in the ancient city of Akshat, it is a mound of earth about 50 feet high and 300 feet in diameter, with a core of sundried bricks, 40 feet square by way of reinforcement.

It might have been, when finished, about one-third the height of Governor Al Smith's Empire State building. The workers were not disciplined by the inflexion of different languages, because there was real danger of their reaching heaven, since that abode, as we know now, must be several billions of miles above the top of their tower. They were disciplined for their presumption, innocent things, believed that heaven was just above the clouds.

To Dare Atlantic

So confident is "Art" Bussy (above), well-known pilot and president of the United Air Lines, that he can lick Old Man Atlantic that he has advertised for passengers who are desirous of flying from New York to London. Bussy plans to make the flight via Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, where he would stop to refuel. The New York-London trip would take 24 hours. He is said to have received a number of replies to his "ad."

Quakers, Palestine Favored In County Track Meet Saturday

THE DAY IN SPORTS

TRACK MEET SATURDAY
RECORDS AMONG BEST
SALEM HIGH FAVORED

THE twenty-ninth annual, Columbiana county track and field meet will be held at Reilly athletic stadium Saturday, once more bringing to Salem the county's outstanding warm-weather classic, a competition which dates back to the year 1903.

One doesn't have to glance back very far to recall the fact that the county meet was always one of the keenest fought affairs in Ohio. In the early days the contest many times was accompanied by riots, displays of rowdiness and feelings that led to well-aimed eggs from nearby nests, reflecting a rivalry that was keen, to say the least.

The meet was just three years old when it was divided by the first real difficulty, originating when Salem school officials took issue with a last-minute ruling, passed by votes of rival school heads and which declared ineligible the Quaker City's three leading stars. The 1906 edition of The News, describing the incident, speaks of it as "the rawest deal ever handed a county school."

The trio of athletes barred by the ruling were Schiller, Cook and Hoie and thereafter Salem High split up the county meet with East Palestine and Leetonia, and sometimes Alliance, held what was known as the North County competition. This was held most at East Palestine.

Because of the gradual metamorphosis that has placed athletics on their present high standard, those old feelings of bitter rivalry have been discarded and replaced by a friendlier spirit. The traditional enmity is still present but the school cars compete with an other without fear of physical combat with roots.

THE COUNTY meet has 14 records which rank among the best of any similar type of competition in the state. Indeed, it might not be too much to conjecture that Columbiana county's marks are, in general, better than those of other county's, and this speaks well for the type of athlete developed in our own neighborhoods.

Several of the county's athletes have won state-wide and national fame on track and field. The spirit of competition, present in the county meet and the intense desire of one school to annihilate its rival, can be declared one reason for this great production of stars. The keener the competition and the greater the desire for victory, the better the athlete.

Saturday Salem High competes with invading athletes from six other county schools, seeking the championship now held by East Palestine's great, Brown and White aggregation of stars. It should be a close, neck-and-neck race for the crown and observers and dopesters shouldn't forget, in doping out the result, that Leetonia, Lisbon, Columbiana, East Liverpool and Wellsville will be present to claim their share of points.

Perhaps no new records will be created but the meet should tend to bring out fine performances of stars. It will be the last year of competition for many youngsters, others will be just starting their climb to fame. Freshmen and sophomores, juniors and seniors all will be imbued with the spirit of rivalry originated when the first meet was run off at the old Salem Driving park in 1903, seeking titular honors for their school.

EFFORTS are being made to locate a complete history of the Columbiana County Track and Field Athletic association for the purpose of bringing up-to-date a list of the meet's championship schools. Assistance of these records will be welcomed.

Here is a list of champions as now held: (these are subject to revision):—
1932—East Palestine; 1931—Salem; 1930—Salem; 1929—Salem; 1928—Salem; 1927—Salem; 1926—Salem; 1925—Salem; 1924—Lisbon; 1919—Wellsville; 1918—East Palestine; 1917—East Palestine 1916—Salem.
1913—Salem; 1911—East Palestine; 1910—Lisbon; 1909—Salem; 1908—Lisbon; 1907—Lisbon; 1906—Lisbon 1905—Salem.

Louisville Defends Stark Track Title

ALLIANCE, May 13.—Eight Class B high schools of Stark county send their track squads to Mount Union field this afternoon for the 1932 track and field meet.

Louisville High school piled up 115 points to romp away with the honors in 1931, while East Sparta scored 76 tallies to finish as runner-up.

Schools to be represented in the 1932 classic are Minerva, East Sparta, North Canton, Jackson Township, Uniontown, Middlebranch, Louisville and Canton township. Coach Robert D. Wright and members of his Mount Union varsity track squad will serve as officials.

Girls will compete in seven events, making a program of 22 contests in all. The seven races for girls follow: Fifty-yard dash, 240-yard relay, six-pound shot put, baseball throw, basketball throw, high jump and hop, step and jump.

Salem Granted Good Chance to Win Title From Rival Thinclads

Threatened by a strong array of talent representing the Red and Black of Salem High, a powerful East Palestine High track and field team comes to Reilly athletic stadium Saturday, prepared for a defense of the county championship title won in 1931.

A hard-fought, two-cornered battle for county laurels is anticipated in the meet, the twenty-ninth annual event calling together the county's best in athletic talent, with Salem and Palestine taking the lion's share of honors.

Five other schools will be entered in the meet.

Seven Schools Entered
The complete entry list will be composed of athletes from Salem, East Palestine, East Liverpool, Lisbon, Leetonia, Columbiana and Lisbon. Each of the seven schools is assured of breaking into the scoring.

A number of outstanding athletes are scheduled to compete in the meet but the majority of the 14 records standing in county books appear destined to survive the day. Performances of thinclads of the county have indicated possibilities of establishment of but two new marks, in the half mile and shot put.

Keith Harris, Irwin Beck and Harold Horstman are probable entries in the 880, each of them having run the distance in better than 2 min. 5 sec., the record, while Wayne Russell is the probable record-smasher in the shot.

Hold Prelims at 10
Preliminaries in nine events will be held beginning at 10 a. m. They are the 100-yd. dash, pole vault and shot put at 10 a. m.; high hurdles and discus throw at 10:30; high jump at 10:45; 220-yd. dash and javelin at 11 and at 11:30 the 220-yd. low hurdles.

Finals are scheduled to begin at 2 p. m. with P. M. Mullins, former Salem High star athlete and graduate of Yale, as referee and George W. Thompson, Y. M. C. A. director of Akron, as starter.

Brumgard, Columbiana star three-throw athlete, will be back to defend his 100-yd. dash title against a strong field of opponents while Bob Fugate of East Liverpool, who placed second to Ken Wagonhauser of Leetonia, is the Pottery City's hope for points in the mile. Fugate may also be entered in the 880, which will also involve Riedy, great East Palestine distance star.

Horstman vs. Fugate
The East Liverpool star is seen as the foremost rival for Salem High's nimble-legged distance flash, Harold Horstman, who last week raced the mile in 4 min. 33 sec., just a fraction above the record of 4:32 held by Wagonhauser. Ed Raymond of Salem and Patterson and Zack of Leetonia are the leading figures in the discus throw.
Lloyd of Wellsville by far leads the county's high hurdling talent and may also lead the field in the low hurdles, an event in which Bruce Arnold of Salem is a promising first-place contender. Brumgard, who also won the 220 a year ago, is favored to retain his title in that event, just as he is the leading 100 yarder. Orsine of East Palestine and Metz, Columbiana, look like the best javelin tossers.

Sidinger In High Jump
Kester of Wellsville and Purn Sidinger of Salem should wage an interesting fight for first place in the high jump while Ed Beck, Bill Miller and Blackburn are favored in a closely watched pole vault battle. Each of the three has continually cleared the 11-foot mark during the past few weeks but the record of Lowell E. Allen, at 12 ft. 8 in., isn't even in danger of being neared.

East Palestine will have men entered in every event and is certain to win plenty of first places. Coach William Ward is confident that Riedy will be a strong contender in the half-mile—the Brown and White entry is destined to push

Max's Preview of Battlefield

BRAVES SUBDUED CUBS; INDIANS TRIM RED SOX

Boston Nationals Flash "Jinx" to win Over Chicago Team

(By Associated Press)
Bill McKechnie's Boston Braves may not win the National League flag this year, but they promise to establish a lasting record for demoralizing the opposition.

In 22 games the battling Bostonians have been helped along by 48 opponents' errors.

The Giants have suffered most of the jinx. In six engagements with the Braves they committed 17 bobbles.

Now come the league leading Chicago Cubs with a threat to surpass anything previously done. Facing Boston for the first time yesterday, they managed to compile seven errors, more than sufficient to give the Braves an 8 to 3 victory behind Ed Brandt.

The Brooklyn Dodgers won first blood in their long-awaited series with Cincinnati, 5 to 2, as Babe Phelps hurled scoreless ball after the first inning.

Jess Haines aimed his initial start of the year for the St. Louis Cardinals and beat the Phillies, 8 to 2.

The Giants' opener at Pittsburgh was rained out, and only one American league engagement escaped the elements. Cleveland nosed out the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 4.

Cantlon Arrives At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, May 13.—With his leg just out of a plaster cast and hobbling about on unfamiliar crutches, William "Shorty" Cantlon vest-pocket speed rider has arrived at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to prepare a broken femur and a very much alive four-cylinder racing car for the annual 500-mile race May 30.

Cantlon, for many a dusty demon of the dirt tracks and now high among the big-top drivers, was injured in a spectacular crash at the El Centro track, California, on February 4 in a mixup with Ernie Triplett which would do credit to a movie thriller.

Salem Stars in County Meet

Here are three athletes almost certain to score points for Salem High school in the twenty-ninth annual Columbiana county track and field meet at Reilly stadium Saturday.

Purn Sidinger is the school's star high jumper while Wayne Russell and Ed Raymond will be competing in weight events, the former in the shot put and latter in the javelin and discus throw.

Russell is conceded a good chance to set a new record in the shot put. The present mark is 45 ft. 1 1/2 in., and is held by Colella of East Palestine. He has exceeded this mark several times this season.

Raymond has proven a heavy point-scorer in the discus and will be given stiff opposition for first place honors in this event by Patterson and Zack, both of Leetonia, who defeated him in the night relay carnival three weeks ago.

Bass and Catfish Placed in Creek

LISBON, May 13.—A tank of marble catfish and bass has been placed in the West Fork of Beaver Creek, a closed stream, by the conservation division of the State Department of Agriculture.
The fish came from the state hatchery at Sandusky. The shipment was deposited in West Fork under the direction of Deputy Game Warden L. W. Boring.
This is the second large shipment of fish deposited in closed streams in this county within two weeks.

RACING SEASON OPENS MAY 21 AT BAINBRIDGE

Ohio Park Improved for Coming Schedule; Ohio Derby Feature

(By International News Service)
CLEVELAND, May 13.—Bainbridge Park, now a beauty spot due to new landscaping and many additions to the stands and changes in the layout of the grounds, opens for its fifth season on May 21.

The track is a tribute to the courage of Tom J. McGinty who, with the backing of Joseph Cattarinich and Leo Dandurand, fought against almost overwhelming odds first to establish it and then perpetuate the sport.

McGinty revived the $12,000 added Ohio State Derby in the opening year and has continued it as the annual feature since. The winners have been Thistle Fyrn, Sunfire, Culloden and A La Carte.

In 1929, the anti-horse element in Geauga county made its fiercest fight to close the track. They charged that the Contribution System violated the law; McGinty declared to the contrary and announced willingness at any time to submit to arrest and a jury trial to decide the issue for all time.

McGinty, his assistant and two clerks were arrested and went to trial in Geauga county before a jury in 1929. The defense was that there was no violation of the Ohio gambling code, and, after a three-day trial, McGinty and the other three were acquitted by a jury consisting of women and men.

Clevelanders wanted running horse races through the years and enjoyed them for a while at the Maple Heights track. But the authorities closed the track on the charge that betting there was illegal. There was no further racing until McGinty made the plunge with Bainbridge in 1928.

With the opening of the course, which is in Geauga county, just over the line from Cuyahoga Co., wherein Cleveland is located, McGinty installed the contribution form of betting. He was at once set with injunctions and other annoyances, but battled them successfully and the track concluded its original scheduled meeting.

Alabama Teacher Seeking Olympic Games Hurdle Title

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of a series of 12 articles on the 12 outstanding United States hopes for the Olympic games which will be conducted in Los Angeles this summer.
TODAY: Percy Beard.

BY STUART CAMERON
United Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, May 13.—Percy Morris Beard, school teacher at Alabama Poly, is the first man to have topped the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.2. World's record holder for the event, and now in his prime, Beard ranks among the forefront of the ranks of U. S. Olympic hopefuls.

Beard graduated at Alabama Poly in 1929, fully believing his days of active competition were over. He had been a fair hurler in his college days, but beyond Auburn, Ala., he only was scantily known.

It was by the most obscure circumstance that Beard was invited to join the Auburn faculty. Having done so, he decided to continue hurdling just for the fun of the thing. He developed what is known as a double-arm whip used in clearing the barriers, and his speed increased immediately. The whip carries him over the hurdles without a break in the rhythm of his stride. He doesn't flatten out over the hurdles as most of his rivals do.

Beard jumped fences when a boy in Greensboro, but he hadn't seen a hurdle until he entered college. Then he took to baseball and football. Induced to try out for track, he specialized in the high jump. Later he turned to hurdling, but was no great success, never finishing better than sixth in the National Collegiate A. A. championship.

Last summer, competing for the New York A. C., he began to approach the then record time of 14.4 held by the famous Earl Thomson. He won a meet in New York in 14.6, and went on to the Nationals at Lincoln, Neb., a hot favorite among eastern partisans, but still somewhat of an unknown elsewhere. He won his specialty in the record time of 14.2, and now he's a marked man.

Beard runs and jumps with an abundance of confidence, but he's quiet-mannered and soft-spoken.

New Life Preserver

Devices to Help the Housewife

Program took another step forward with the opening of the International Patent Exposition at New York. When an army of inventors from every corner of the earth displayed their ideas for making life easier for humanity. Some of the models on display are intentionally funny, such as the anti-crooning device, guaranteed to eliminate the noise with the sub. This gadget changes the distant tones of the would-be crooner into the resonant notes of a robust vocalist. Then there is the sousaphone that whistles when the eggs are cracked and the sousaphone that returns the ball, and to mention a fishing rod that rings a bell when the fish nibbles. Among the more serious models on display are a new life preserver for sea bathers, a ball-bearing rolling pin, the latest thing in television sets and improved radio receivers, as well as many new designs for aircraft. One model is of a hybrid airplane and airship. The inventors displaying their brain children come from all walks of life, actors, laborers, business men, mechanics and cowboys. A bedridden old lady exhibits a new set of baseball game, and a calligrapher from the white open spaces shows a reversible hat for women, while a 3-year-old girl from Brooklyn, N. Y., is the proud inventor of a non-sid soap. After a year of the exposition, one comes away with the belief that there is nothing left to invent, unless it is some device for the elimination of the annoying job of getting out the cat.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY CONVIC-FRIEDLE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS
At 11:30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night-Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Though her husband died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. She arrives at the Mayfair accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. At Lola's urgent request, Colt joins her party. She voices the fear that she will not leave Mayfair alive.

CHAPTER FOUR
"What Miss Carewe says is not an exaggeration," declared old Rowland, with smooth authority. "I consider that she is in urgent need of police advice and protection."
Out of the pause that followed, came Colt's voice, clear, masculine and precise:
"Why do you think you will be killed?"
"I have been warned of what will happen to me!"
"Personally?"
"The warning was clear enough—for me!"
Colt looked at her, for the first time showing the slightest interest. "A practical joke?" he suggested. She looked at him searchingly.
"Mr. Colt, would you consider it a practical joke, if you had a dog that you had loved for years, and someone killed him?"
Colt's cigarette burned neglected between his fingers.
"That was done to my dog a week ago," Lola rushed on.
Into the gaze of Thatcher Colt had leaped a gleam of resentment—the chief was not a dog-lover, but any woman killing stirred his resentment.
"That sounds—far-fetched!" he protested. "Where was your dog killed—in your apartment?"
"On the terrace, outside my bedroom window."
"And at what hour?"
"Late at night, while we were all asleep—my maid, my mother, and Christine Quires, a girl friend who is stopping with me."
"How was he killed?" asked Colt.
"I don't know. We just found him dead!"
Was this all that had alarmed the beauty? Yet there was no mistaking the fear that possessed Lola Carewe.
"Has anything else happened to 'Yesterday,' she disclosed, 'my alarm you?" asked Colt politely. Lola shivered.

"Pet parrot, Pandy Boo, given to me by my late husband, also died."
"How?"
"I don't know."
"Wasn't it poisoned?"
"That's the queer part. Of course I thought so. But I sent the poor thing to an animal hospital. They could find no trace of any poison at all."
Colt nodded thoughtfully.
"Still, isn't it probably only a coincidence?" he suggested.
"Not after what happened to-night."
"Just listen to this, Mr. Colt," urged Vincent Rowland, as he leaned forward. All eyes were now on Lola.
"Only an hour ago, I found a letter in the mail box in the lobby of my apartment house, as I came downstairs with Mr. Rowland. You see, Mr. Colt, we had not intended coming to Mayfair tonight. We were bound for the Lion's Paw, the new club out near Rockville Center. But as soon as we read this note, I felt I must get to you about it. We telephoned your office, then your home—your butler told me you would be here. Vincent, show Mr. Colt that letter."
The aged lawyer gravely produced a plain white envelope, from which the Commissioner drew a single sheet of ruled note paper. The message was written in cheap brownish ink, the awkward block letters apparently formed with painful care, and read:
"We have already killed the only two creatures that you ever had any real love for. Now we come to you. You are going to die before three o'clock. No human being can save you."
There was no signature. Colt carefully folded the paper and passed it to me.
"If someone meant to take your life, why warn you about it?" he objected, frowning. "The act of sending such a warning should be a psychological clue to the writer's identity."
The waiter brought the dishes of their order. Lola Carewe toyed with her fork, then lifted it, about to taste a curry of lamb and rice. Colt's voice, casual, indifferent, stayed her:
"I would not eat that if I really felt—"
"Of course," she murmured. "What a silly fool I would be to touch anything now."
"Ah, my dear Colt, then you do take this threat seriously," exclaimed Vincent Rowland with deep satisfaction.
"Miss Carewe's life may be in danger," granted Colt, tampering out his cigarette. "At least, I think she should be well-guarded to-night. I shall be glad to put some of our picked men at her disposal."
A little cry came from Lola Carewe and a grunt of disappointment from Rowland. Dougherty was staring meaningfully at the Commissioner.
"Miss Carewe had hoped for your personal handling of this case," essayed the elderly attorney. "And so, in fact, did I. It would be a great favor to me—"
"I feel that only you can save my life, Mr. Colt," shuddered Lola, her white fingers quivering as they toyed with her ruby. "No one else—I am really terrified—"
"Thatcher," cried Dougherty, "we can't pass this up. It's natural—you understand."
Colt nodded slowly.
"Very well," he yielded. "I shall be glad to supervise your protection by the Police Department,—if you think you need that. But only on my own terms."

What's In A Name?

"Anything!" cried Lola. "And what are your terms?" from Vincent Rowland.
"That you, Miss Carewe, place yourself and your household entirely in my hands. We must go to your home at once—and you must answer all my questions."
"Willingly," Lola Carewe agreed, with a docile, child-like gaze.
"There must be no deviation of any kind from police orders!" emphasized Colt.
"You shall be the boss," she promised, laughing with an effort at lightness.
Poor Lola! If she had only kept that promise!
Five minutes later I was talking to Headquarters from a telephone booth under the staircase outside the Crystal Room. At the other end of the wire was Inspector Flynn. I was transmitting Colt's orders.
"The chief wants detectives and one woman operative sent at once to the apartment house at Number 700 East Fifty-eighth Street. Tell them to meet us in the hallway on the twenty-second floor. Fix it with the apartment house manager. And the chief says to step on it."
"O and also K," growled Inspector Flynn as he hung up.
Emerging from the telephone booth, I found Detective H. H. Harris, of the Fifth Avenue Squad, waiting for us. Harris was assigned to Mayfair every Saturday night. He was a first-grade detective, promoted as are all the New York detectives from the uniformed ranks—a dark-haired man with a soulful expression, whose popularity with the opposite sex gained the Police Department many valuable tips. Colt had directed Harris to assist me.
"Everything set," Harris told me. "The Commissioner's car is now in front of the Forty-sixth Street entrance. Three motorcycle patrolmen are standing by. Would you mind telling me what all this is about?"
I pretended not to hear him as I reclaimed hat, stick, and overcoat and led the way up the red-carpeted stairs. Through the glass of the revolving doors, I saw the chief's car, and the round, moon-like face of the chauffeur, Neil McMahon, impassive as a Buddha above the steering wheel. The air was filled with whirling snowflakes, and the wind made a harsh sound. I was suddenly overpowered by a sense of unreality. This New Year's Eve adventure seemed remote, bizarre, incredible. The three patrolmen were huddled together like blue night-birds in the storm. The shields on their breasts gleamed brightly. One of them coughed. These men, Colt's car, the storm—all were real—but Lola Carewe's death-threat—
When our party left the Ritz Carlton Hotel that night, Lola was under strict and adequate police guard. Quickly she entered the Commissioner's car, and sat in the middle of the rear seat. Colt rode at her left, and I at her right. Dougherty and Rowland occupied the folding seats in front of us, and Detective Harris sat beside the chauffeur in front. At a word from Colt, we started off at break-neck speed through the slithering ice of the winter streets, followed by three chugging motorcycles.
"The glass of these windows is bullet-proof," Dougherty explained. For no apparent reason, Vincent Rowland laughed softly.
"Am I to take it that we are now impregnable from attack?" he queried.
The District Attorney did not reply. The car stopped before the marquee of an apartment house, a thin, tall tower on the bring of the East River. Except for the three uniformed motorcycle officers, the sidewalk seemed deserted. Shivering in the dismal cold, we hurried into the lobby. With an unnatural sense of apprehension, I looked around me. So definite and so defiant had been the threat against this woman's life and Thatcher Colt had taken it so seriously, that I was prepared to see an assassin in every dark corner.

S. H. S. NEWS

INC.

It is just surprising how everyone this year is interested in making garden, planting flowers, and keeping their lawns beautiful. The public thronged the recent flower show paying one dollar per ticket which showed their interest in flowers and gardens.

In the first place it is necessary that the grass be cut close and smooth. A good "lawn mower" is essential and can be purchased from $5.95 to $11.00. One exceptionally good value is featured at $7.75.

An ivory colored "bird bath" at $3.95 adds distinction to your garden.

The outdoors is so interesting that it is very easy to neglect the indoors. The first thing we know there will come a warm day and flies will begin to appear. Before that happens the "screen doors and windows" must be looked over. Perhaps they are not worth repairing.

A very fine paneled screen for the front door is priced at $4.00. A good substantial screen for the back door is only $2.50.

No difference what size your windows, the "adjustable" window screen can be made to fit. They range in height from ten to thirty inches and are priced according to size.

For the ordinary window a 10" screen is 25c, 12"-30c, 18"-40c 25"-50c. For the extra wide window 18" screen is 55c and a 24" is 60c. Do not let the flies steal a march on you this year.

The electric floor polisher has been busy. It does a lot of work in a day's time at a nominal cost of $1.00.

A son following in the footsteps of his father is a fairly common occurrence, but here is a girl who appears to be starting out to emulate her father. She is Miss Julia Wheeler Harris, daughter of the late Senator William Harris of Georgia, who is getting her groundwork in politics as a member of the staff of Major John S. Cohen, who was appointed to succeed her father in the Senate. Miss Harris is a graduate of Bryn Mawr.

Inventor Army Shows Brain Children

Whistling Egg Saucepans; Crooner Silencers and Non-Skid Soap Among 5,000 Inventions Displayed at New York Exposition.

NEW LIFE PRESERVER

DEVICES TO HELP THE HOUSEWIFE

Progress took another step forward with the opening of the International Patent Exposition at New York, when an army of inventors from every corner of the earth displayed their ideas for making life easier for humanity. Some of the models on display are intentionally funny, such as, the anti-crooning device, guaranteed to eliminate the voice with the sob. This gadget changes the dulcet tones of the would-be crooner into the resonant ones of a robust vocalist. Then there is the saucepan that whistles when the eggs are cooked and the mousetrap that returns the bait, not to mention a fishing rod that rings a bell when the fish nibbles. Among the more serious models on display are, a new life preserver for sea bathers, a ball-bearing rolling pin, the latest thing in television sets and improved radio receivers, as well as many new designs for aircraft. One model is of a hybrid airplane and airship. The inventors displaying their brain children come from all walks of life, actors, laborers, business men, mechanics and convicts. A bedridden old lady exhibits a new sort of baseball game, and a cattleman from the wide open spaces shows a reversible hat for women, while a 9-year-old girl from Brooklyn, N. Y., is the proud inventor of a non-skid soap. After a tour of the exposition, one comes away with the belief that there is nothing left to invent, unless it is some device for the elimination of the annoying job of putting out the cat.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Sixteen ketches and yawls are entered in the third international sailing race to start from St. Petersburg from Havana, April 16, over a course of 284 nautical miles.

DURANGO, Colo.—Annabelle Soens, seven, was shy on iron in her diet, so supplemented the table rations with two eight-penny nails. An operation saved her.

WIMBLEDON, Eng.—Believed to be one of the oldest working horses in the world, Maggie, 38 years old, has drawn her milk wagon 20,000 times. At some houses she taps her hoof on the curb and waits for her reward of a lump of sugar.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

SYNOPSIS

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night-Club Lady", widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Though her husband died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. She arrives at the Mayfair accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. At Lola's urgent request, Colt joins her party. She voices the fear that she will not leave Mayfair alive.

CHAPTER FOUR

"What Miss Carewe says is not an exaggeration," declared old Rowland, with smooth authority. "I consider that she is in urgent need of police advice and protection."

Out of the pause that followed, came Colt's voice, clear, masculine and precise:

"Why do you think you will be killed?"

"I have been warned of what will happen to me!"

"Really?"

"The warning was clear enough—for me!"

Colt looked at her, for the first time showing the slightest interest.

"A practical joke?" he suggested. She looked at him searchingly.

"Mr. Colt, would you consider it a practical joke, if you had a dog that you had loved for years, and someone killed him?"

Colt's cigarette burned neglected between his fingers.

"That was done to my dog a week ago," Lola rushed on.

Into the gaze of Thatcher Colt had leaped a gleam of resentment—the chief was not a dog-lover, but any wanton killing stirred his resentment.

"That sounds—far-fetched!" he protested. "Where was your dog killed—in your apartment?"

"On the terrace, outside my bedroom window."

"And at what hour?"

"Late at night, while we were all asleep—my maid, my mother, and Christine Quires, a girl friend who is stopping with me."

"How was he killed?" asked Colt.

"I don't know. We just found him dead!"

Was this all that had alarmed the beauty? Yet there was no mistaking the fear that possessed Lola Carewe.

"Has anything else happened to 'Yesterday' she disclosed, 'my

Tough! That's the only word that describes the wearing quality of LOWE BROTHERS PORCH AND DECK PAINT.

Just try it once . . . you'll find that it dries exceptionally hard, and wears well. Hard leather heels won't scuff it and chairs that skid across the floor won't mar it. And the way it stands up under sun, snow, sleet and rain is truly remarkable!

We can supply you with LOWE BROTHERS PORCH AND DECK PAINT in pleasing colors.

alarm you?" asked Colt politely.

Lola shivered.

pet parrot, Pandi Boo, given to me by my late husband, also died."

"How?"

"Wasn't it poisoned?"

"That's the queer part. Of course I thought so. But I sent the poor thing to an animal hospital. They could find no trace of any poison at all."

Colt nodded thoughtfully.

"Still, isn't it probably only a coincidence?" he suggested.

"Not after what happened to-night."

"Just listen to this, Mr. Colt," urged Vincent Rowland, as he leaned forward. All eyes were now on Lola.

"Only an hour ago, I found a letter in the mail box in the lobby of my apartment house, as I came downstairs with Mr. Rowland. You see, Mr. Colt, we had not intended coming to Mayfair tonight. We were bound for the Lion's Paw, the new club out near Rockville Center. But as soon as we read this note, I felt I must get to you about it. We telephoned your office, then your home—your butler told me you would be here. Vincent, show Mr. Colt that letter."

The aged lawyer gravely produced a plain white envelope, from which the Commissioner drew a single sheet of ruled note paper. The message was written in cheap brown ink, the awkward block letters apparently formed with painful care, and read:

"We have already killed the only two creatures that you ever had any real love for. Now we come to you. You are going to die before three o'clock. No human being can save you."

There was no signature. Colt carefully folded the paper and passed it to me.

"If someone meant to take your life, why warn you about it?" he objected, frowning. "The act of sending such a warning should be a psychological clue to the writer's identity."

The waiter brought the dishes of their order. Lola Carewe toyed with her fork, then lifted it, about to taste a curry of lamb and rice. Colt's voice, casual, indifferent, stayed her:

"I would not eat that if I really felt."

"Of course," she murmured.

"What a silly fool I would be to touch anything now."

"Ah, my dear Colt, then you do take this threat seriously," exclaimed Vincent Rowland with deep satisfaction.

"Miss Carewe's life may be in danger," granted Colt, tampering out his cigarette. "At least, I think she should be well-guarded to-night. I shall be glad to put some of our picked men at her disposal."

A little cry came from Lola Carewe and a grunt of disappointment from Rowland. Dougherty was staring meaningfully at the Commissioner.

"Miss Carewe had hoped for your personal handling of this case," he said to the elderly attorney. "And so, in fact, did I. It would be a great favor to me."

"I feel that only you can save my life, Mr. Colt," shuddered Lola, her white fingers quivering as they toyed with her ruby. "No one else—I am really terrified."

"Thatcher," cried Dougherty, "we can't pass this up. It's natural—you understand."

Colt nodded slowly.

"Very well," he yielded. "I shall be glad to supervise your protection by the Police Department,—if you think you need that. But only on my own terms."

What's In A Name?

"Anything!" cried Lola.

"And what are your terms?" from Vincent Rowland.

"That you, Miss Carewe, place yourself and your household entirely in my hands. We must go to your home at once—and you must answer all my questions."

"Willingly," Lola Carewe agreed, with a docile, child-like gaze.

"There must be no deviation of any kind from police orders!" emphasized Colt.

"You shall be the boss," she promised, laughing with an effort at lightness.

Poor Lola! If she had only kept that promise!

Five minutes later I was talking to Headquarters from a telephone booth under the staircase outside the Crystal Room. At the other end of the wire was Inspector Flynn. I was transmitting Colt's orders.

"The chief wants detectives and one woman operative sent at once to the apartment house at Number 700 East Fifty-eighth Street. Tell them to meet us in the hallway on the twenty-second floor. Fix it with the apartment house manager. And the chief says to step on it."

"O and also K," growled Inspector Flynn as he hung up.

Emerging from the telephone booth, I found Detective H. H. Harris, of the Fifth Avenue Squad, waiting for us. Harris was assigned to Mayfair every Saturday night. He was a first-grade detective, promoted as are all the New York detectives from the uniformed ranks—a dark-haired man with a soulful expression, whose popularity with the opposite sex gained the Police Department many valuable tips. Colt had directed Harris to assist me.

"Everything set," Harris told me. "The Commissioner's car is now in front of the Forty-sixth Street entrance. Three motorcycle patrolmen are standing by. Would you mind telling me what all this is about?"

I pretended not to hear him as I reclaimed hat, stick, and overcoat and led the way up the red-carpeted stairs. Through the glass of the revolving doors, I saw the chief's car, and the round, moon-like face of the chauffeur, Neil McMahon, impassive as a Buddha above the steering wheel. The air was filled with whirling snowflakes, and the wind made a harsh sound. I was suddenly overpowered by a sense of unreality. This New Year's Eve adventure seemed remote, bizarre, incredible. The three patrolmen were huddled together like blue night-birds in the storm. The shields on their breasts gleamed brightly. One of them coughed.

These men, Colt's car, the storm—all were real—but Lola Carewe's death-threat.

When our party left the Ritz Carlton Hotel that night, Lola was under strict and adequate police guard. Quickly she entered the Commissioner's car, and sat in the middle of the rear seat. Colt rode at her left, and I at her right. Dougherty and Rowland occupied the folding seats in front of us, and Detective Harris sat beside the chauffeur in front. At a word from Colt, we started off at break-neck speed through the slithering ice of the winter streets, followed by three chugging motorcycles.

"The glass of these windows is bullet-proof," Dougherty explained. For no apparent reason, Vincent Rowland laughed softly.

"Am I to take it that we are now impregnable from attack?" he queried.

The District Attorney did not reply. The car stopped before the marquee of an apartment house, a thin, tall tower on the bring of the East River. Except for the three uniformed motorcycle officers, the sidewalk seemed deserted. Shivering in the dismal cold, we hurried into the lobby. With an unnatural sense of apprehension, I looked around me. So definite and so defiant had been the threat against this woman's life and Thatcher Colt had taken it so seriously, that I was prepared to see an assassin in every dark corner.

Studying Politics

A son following in the footsteps of his father is a fairly common occurrence, but here is a girl who appears to be starting out to emulate her father. She is Miss Julia Wheeler Harris, daughter of the late Senator William Harris of Georgia, who is getting her groundwork in politics as a member of the staff of Major John S. Cohen, who was appointed to succeed her father in the Senate. Miss Harris is a graduate of Bryn Mawr.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeanette Young Norton

Dandelion—the Edible Weed
 "Eat it raw like salad, or cook it like spinach," was the marketman's advice to the young housekeeper who wanted to experiment with dandelion.

It's a delightful green, provided one chooses it carefully. Whether you buy it, or pick it in the fields, choose only the plants that are young and small and minus blossoms. Big leaves are apt to be coarse in texture, and if the plant has begun to blossom there will be a bitter flavor which is not acceptable to most persons.

Trim off the outer coarse leaves and the stem, and soak the dandelion in enough cold water to float the leaves. Lift out of water and put in a colander or cheesecloth bag, and immerse in boiling water for about 5 minutes. Then remove, place in a saucepan, pour over fresh boiling water and cook 20 minutes.

Drain and serve dressed with melted butter, salt and pepper, and if desired a dash of lemon juice. Or the cooked dandelion can be mounded on a platter and garnished with strips of crisp bacon and slices of hard-cooked egg.

Cooked dandelion can be served as a salad, too, if the leaves are too large to be eaten raw. The cooked leaves will serve, if well chilled and dressed with mayonnaise or Russian dressing.

Tender young dandelion leaves can be washed thoroughly, drained and chilled, and then used like lettuce, served alone or with any other vegetable—tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, etc.

Raw young dandelions also can be mixed with an equal quantity of some other salad plant such as lettuce, escarole, nivede or romaine.

Save the Vegetable Juices

Opening a can of asparagus, the bachelor who was so proud of his housekeeping carefully poured the juice into a large tumbler. "That'll make a good drink," he observed, and put it on ice. As an enthusiastic camper, he boasted that nothing edible or drinkable was wasted in his menage, and maintained that juices of vegetables are just as good as the juices of fruits.

With Thick Sauce

In cooking fresh vegetables most housekeepers nowadays use the minimum of water. Many, indeed, do waterless cooking. While it is not always desirable that whatever juice is left in the saucepan shall be used at once as a cream sauce, since one may prefer to dress the hot vegetable with plain melted butter or butter and lemon juice, it's a helpful plan to use every kind of vegetable juice, whether derived from fresh cooked vegetables or drained from a can.

Vegetable juices can be used to flavor thick sauces to accompany a dish at some later meal, or if two or three kinds of vegetable juices accumulate in the icebox they can be combined, mixed with a can of bouillon or tomatoes, seasoned with salt, pepper and a dash of Worcestershire sauce and turned into a stimulating clear soup. Adding bits of celery or parsley, or a slice of onion, will impart a pleasant fresh tang.

Slender Silhouette Still the Mode

Tall, Boyish Figure Is Ideal for Newest Summer Styles. Dignity in Frocks Is Latest Decree of Dame Fashion.

Above are a few of the models displayed at a recent exhibition of Summer fashions. Contrary to the predictions of beauty connoisseurs, the slender, boyish silhouette is still enjoying popularity with couturiers. The newest modes are designed to show to the best advantage the tall, slim figure, cut upon boyish lines, but with an effect of statuesque dignity. At left is a Summer frock of organdie, with embroidered batiste, one of the charmingly feminine models on display. The broad high girle in two tones of blue adds an attractive note. In the center are two gleaming white satin evening gowns, satin still being the popular medium. These gowns have jackets of contrasting colors; one with black and white bolero effect, and the other with orange crepe, fitted to the figure. At the right is a beautiful frock of the more demure type. This model illustrates the longer silhouette. It is of pleated chiffon, with a bodice in two shades of green that crosses and ties in back with long, trailing ends. So now, ladies, get that slender figure. Get up in the morning and s-t-r-e-t-c-h for the sky until you attain the graceful symmetry that is so necessary if body is to harmonize with the clothes.

flower, broccoli, onions, turneps or peas can be kept for a day or two in the icebox without deterioration in flavor. Juices of canned vegetables should never be thrown away, but poured off into a tumbler and kept until needed, if it is not desirable to use them at once.

The growing popularity of the tomato juice cocktail, instead of a sweet fruit cocktail, makes it possible to spread the use of all sorts of vegetable juices. These vegetable drinks must be kept on ice until the last moment, and if possible, served in small tumblers set in a bed of ice, for they must be very cold. The addition of spices like pepper, tabasco, grated horseradish, capers, and lemon juice will pep up any flat vegetable juice and make a very refreshing drink.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

If it's clear tonight, a moonbeam which has come 250,000 miles will be called upon to help out in a broadcast.

This feat is set for a special program of the orchestra and Cavalliers on WEAF-NBC at 7 o'clock in connection with the opening of another New York skyscraper, 60 wall tower.

The moonbeam is to start the voice of Henry L. Doherty on its way to listeners. A 14-inch lens on the roof will reflect the beam into its 67th floor office. There it will be picked up by a vibrating mirror, which will be modulated by Mr. Doherty's voice through a microphone. The mirror in turn will cast the beam, concentrated to a pencil-like thickness, to photocell 4-1-2 inches away. The cell turns it into electric energy for radiocasting.

But if the night is cloudy, light from the torch in the Statue of Liberty will be used.

Word filters through from the Pacific coast that Al Jolson has undergone an audition in the NBC studios in the hope that the ultimate result will be a network series.

(By Associated Press)
MINNEAPOLIS — Because he feels inferior, A. K. Johnson would like to have $65,000, a considerable sum at any time. He sued Mrs. Vera L. Ferrin for that amount, alleging she was responsible for an auto mishap that left him with an inferiority complex.

WASHINGTON — The old frigate Constitution is still a good ship. She staged an act for which she was not scheduled in the dedication of the memorial to George Washington in Alexandria yesterday by slipping an anchor and going for a trip of a quarter a mile down the Potomac with 50 visitors to the dedication aboard before a tender crew could bring her back.

NEW YORK—Well, anyway it can't be said some of Columbia university's students aren't honest about their "cheating."

Forty-one per cent of the 391 who answered a questionnaire circulated by the Spectator, campus newspaper, said they "cribbed" on examinations. Were the names published? They were not.

CHICAGO—"Any rags, any bones and bottles today," is going to be missing in Chicago. Some 1,800 junk peddlers voted to stop buying material until conditions are better, which means old Dobbin is going to get a rest.

LONDON—According to official statistics there are 20,392 men in the London police force of whom 1,396 are engaged in traffic control duties.
